

Black & White Processing (35mm / 120mm)

Black & White developing can be done through C-41 color process or black and white traditional hand process depending on the film type. Following the initial development, prints are made on Fuji Color Crystal Archival paper. Each image is individually corrected for density. The final product is thoroughly inspected by a trained, experienced staff member. Black and white prints can be printed in all standard print sizes at the time of development from both 35mm and 120mm film. Black and white can be printed on glossy or matte paper, with or without borders. Cooper's Imaging also specializes and offers a custom, unique sepia tone. Available at the time of development or on reprint and enlargements, this brown/gold tone resembles the tone used years ago. Copyrighting is available on black and white proofs. Note: Develop only services are provided at a one time only charge. After development, printing prices including development no longer apply.
